Amy G. Brady is Key's Chief Information Officer, leading the company's Technology and Operations organization. In her role, Amy oversees all of Key's shared services for technology, operations, data, servicing, security and procurement. Technology and Operations is comprised of more than 5,000 individuals and plays a significant role in Key's ability to win in the marketplace by enabling the company's goal to build enduring client relationships through innovative solutions and extraordinary service. Technology and Operations delivers innovative technology to clients, such as mobile and online banking, and world-class operations solutions, including loan, payment and treasury services. Amy also serves on the company's Executive Council and Executive Leadership Team.

Prior to joining Key in 2012, Amy served as Chief Information Officer, Enterprise Technology and Operations, at Bank of America. In this role, she was responsible for technology and operations delivery for critical enterprise functions including Finance, Risk, Human Resources, Marketing, Legal and Audit. She began her career with Bank of America in 1987 as a banking center manager and held various leadership roles in Global Technology & Operations and Consumer and Small Business Banking before being named CIO.

Amy serves on the boards for the Achievement Centers for Children, Cleveland Leadership Center, Playhouse Square and the Case Western Reserve University Corporate Advisory Board. She is also Chair of the BITS Executive Board. She formerly served on the Executive Board of the Metro Atlanta YMCA.

In 2016, 2017 and 2018, Amy was recognized by American Banker as one of the "Top 25 Most Powerful Women in Banking", and listed among the "Powerful Women to Watch" in 2013, 2014 and 2015. Amy was recognized by Crain's Cleveland as CIO of the Year in 2014. She was a finalist for the Georgia CIO of the Year Award in 2013 and received the 2013 Ohio Glass Ceiling Award from the Ohio Diversity Council. In 2012, Amy was recognized by the YWCA of Atlanta as a Woman of Achievement and was a winner of WIT's "Women of the Year in Technology" in 2009. Amy is a member of Leadership Cleveland class of 2014 and Leadership Atlanta class of 2012.

Amy received a Bachelor of Arts degree in Psychology and Music from Rollins College in Winter Park, Fla.
